DETAILED ACTION

Continued Prosecution Application

1. The request filed on November 27, 2002 for a Continued Prosecution Application (CPA) under 37 CFR 1.53(d) based on parent Application No. 09/492,137 is acceptable and a CPA has been established. Claims 1-13, 15 are pending in the application. Claims 11 and 13 are drawn to non-elected inventions in Paper No. 4. An action on the CPA follows.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1,7,9,10,12,15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Morimoto et al. (JP 10056969 A).

4. Morimoto teaches a soybean protein/cocoa granule for a drink, as recited in claim 12, wherein the cocoa, which is taken to be a coloring agent as well as has supplying various oil soluble vitamins such as vitamin E (i.e. via cocoa butter) as recited in claims 1 and 15, 1-6% hemicellulose as recited in claims 1 and 7, and 0.2-2% trehalose as recited in claim 1. The ratio of trehalose to hemicellulose is between 50:1

Art Unit: 1761

to 1:50 (e.g. .0.2% to 1% or 2% to 1%) including 8:1 to 1:1, as recited in claims 9 and 10 (See English Abstract and English Specification, paragraphs 0008-0018).

5. Claims 1-4,12,15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Narimatsu et al (US 6224931 B1).

6. Narimatsu et al. teach adding a powder of hemicellulose to noodles as recited in claim 12, and the powder may further comprise vitamin E (tocopherol) as recited in claims 1 and 15, and trehalose, as recited in claim 1 (Column 3, lines 12-39). The hemicellulose is derived from soybeans by heat extraction, as recited in claims 2 and 3, with a molecular weight of 50,000 -1,000,000 as recited in claim 4( Column 2, lines 28-57).

7. Claims 1-4,12,15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Nakamura et al. (US 6045847)

8. Nakamura et al. teach adding a powder of hemicellulose to noodles as recited in claim 12, and the powder may further comprise vitamin E (tocopherol) as recited in claims 1 and 15, and trehalose, as recited in claim 1 (Column 4, lines 10-36). The hemicellulose is derived from soybean by heat extraction, as recited in claims 2 and 3, has a molecular weight of 50,000 to 1,000,000 as recited in claim 4 (Column3, lines 25-Column 4, line 3).

Art Unit: 1761

9. Claims 1 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Vermeer (US 5880076).

10. Vermeer teaches a powder consisting of perfumes, coloring agents, or even vitamin E or lecithin as recited in claim 15(Column 49, lines 50+) in combination with trehalose and water-soluble hemicellulose as recited in claim 1(column 14, lines 15+, column 21, lines 25+).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

11. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

12. Claims 1-8, rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shiseido (JP06040845 A) in view of Hattori (JP 06157238A).

13. Regarding claims 1-8, Shiseido teaches a solid powder containing trehalose up to 50% as recited in claims 1, 5 and 6, with perfume and a water soluble polymer (i.e. the material may contain one or more mixt. ). The intended purpose is a non-sticky cosmetic that maintains moisture, but is still stable (English Abstract and English Specification Paragraphs 0001-0006). However, Shiseido is silent in teaching adding hemicellulose with a MW of 50,000 to 1,000,000 derived from soybean by acidic heat extraction as recited in claims 1-4 at 10-40% in the powder as recited in claims 7 and 8.

Art Unit: 1761

14. Hattori et al who also teaches a cosmetic that retains moisture without deteriorating using a water soluble polymer, are relied on as evidence of using a water soluble hemicellulose with a MW of 50,000 to 1,000,000 derived from soybean by acidic heat extraction as recited in claims 1-4 ( English Abstract and English Specification Paragraph 0011). Furthermore Hattori et al. teach the hemicellulose is effective at 0.001-20%, as recited in claims 7 and 8 (English Specification Paragraph 0020).

15. Therefore, it would have been obvious to include hemicellulose with a MW of 50,000 to 1,000,000 derived from soybean by acidic heat extraction in the solid powder of Shiseido since one would have been substituting one known water soluble polymer for another for the same purpose: a cosmetic that retains moisture without deteriorating. It would have been further obvious to include between 10% and 40% hemicellulose since Hattori et al. teach this is an effective level to achieve the same result as Shiseido: moisture stability in a cosmetic.
